

Clinical Professor of Otolaryngology at the Icahn School of Medicine.

He is a graduate of the Boston University 6-year BA-MD program. He did his post graduate training at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital and his residency training in the Combined Boston University Tufts University Otolaryngology program. From 1983 through 1994, he was on the academic faculty at the State University of New York Upstate Medical Center. From 1994-1996 he was the vice-Chairman of the Otolaryngology department at Tufts University. In 1996, he became the Grabscheid Professor of Otolaryngology and the director of the Grabscheid Voice Center at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine, Department of Otolaryngology, Head and Neck Surgery. Since 2008, he has been in clinical practice with academic appointment as clinical professor and co-director of laryngology fellowship training program at the Icahn School of Medicine.

Dr. Woo was a past president of the American Broncho-esophagological Association and the immediate past president of the American Laryngological Association.

His main clinical and research interests are in the medical and surgical treatment of laryngeal diseases. He has lectured extensively on diagnosis and management of voice disorders. He has participated in laryngology fellowship training of international and national fellows since 1996.